

The National Leadership Program Fellowship on Faith Inclusion

Jewish Inclusion Fellows will work to increase inclusion and access for Jews with disabilities and their families. When the Americans with Disabilities Act was passed 26 years ago, it exempted faith-based organizations. Thus, many such organizations do not yet have the attitudes, physical facilities, or training they need to appropriately welcome people of all abilities. Given the very important role that faith and faith-based organizations play in America, RespectAbility is working for full inclusion in all faith groups. However, it has started its faith-based inclusion work with a focus on the Jewish community and institutions. As model practices are established, we are working broadly across faiths to share best practices.

RespectAbility understands that the Jewish community, like all communities, is stronger when it lives up to its values - when it is welcoming, diverse, moral, and respects each other. We want children, parents, grandparents, friends, and other family members with disabilities to be able to fully participate in their communities. A “Slingshot-recognized” organization, RespectAbility is on the front lines - working to ensure that everyone knows that his or her presence and participation is welcomed and meaningful.

One of our key initiatives for 2017 revolves around Communities of Practice. These are geographically-focused partnerships that will convene local stakeholders – including faith institutions – in ending stigmas against and advancing economic opportunities for people with disabilities. Jewish Inclusion Fellows will be closely involved in this critical work.

Our program is fully accessible for people with disabilities and offers full-time in-house job coaching, skills development and networking opportunities. Assistive technology and personal care support are available as needed.

Who We Want

The National Leadership Program is ideal for people who want to gain skills and contacts while making a positive difference for people with disabilities in faith based communities. We are looking for creative, results-driven individuals who want to achieve breakthrough results while getting hands-on experience. The fellowship is for college and graduate students, as well as for people transitioning into the workforce for the first time or back into the workforce after a break. Fellows will ideally have an interest in the nonprofit/faith inclusion sector. Past inclusion experience not necessary.

Fellowship Duties

The fellows will work closely with our National Leadership Program Director and Development and Inclusion Associate, with possible projects with a New York City-based RespectAbility board member and an Ohio-based consultant. Individual projects will be assigned based on an individual’s unique skill set and their own ability to “bring something to the table.” Tasks might include outreach to faith institutions, development/fundraising work pertaining to faith-based inclusion (like grant and proposal writing, prospect research, donor relations), and attending faith-based inclusion meetings. Jewish Inclusion Fellows will join supervisors at workshops, webinars and events that pertain to inclusion.

Each fellow will receive as many opportunities as possible to learn new skills, network, and gain direct experiences. In addition to hands-on work experiences, all fellows will participate in special presentations by guest speakers and intensive strategic communications workshops. A career plan will be developed by each fellow that will enable him or her to gain appropriate workplace experience while contributing directly and measurably to RespectAbility's impact.

Upon the completion of the fellowship program, applicants can expect to come away with excellent experience in the fields of strategic communications, policy, and inclusion; professional networking connections in Washington, D.C.; fair knowledge of issues for people with disabilities; and leadership skills to help them grow into confident advocates.
